

INSURANCE REAUTHORIZATION

A Repeated Setback
For Parkinson's Disease Psychosis Patients

Getting insurance coverage for FDA-approved medications that treat Parkinson's disease psychosis often requires PRIOR AUTHORIZATION.

To continue the medication, patients and providers may face reauthorization EVERY FEW MONTHS.

THAT'S MORE RED TAPE

just to prove that patients still require treatment, even though their condition doesn't go away.

During the back and forth, PATIENTS MAY RUN OUT OF MEDICATION

or default to a less effective option, prompting:

Difficulty concentrating

Increased psychosis

Caregiver burden

Anxiety and stress

PEOPLE WITH A PERSISTENT CONDITION
DESERVE CONSISTENT ACCESS TO TREATMENT.
